(1984), tokyo, japan (1986), structural behavior of tubular sections - structural behavior of tubular sections donald r. sherman [1] structural members made from tubes often have different strength and behavioral characteristics than other common structural shapes. in addition, there are differences in behavior depending on the method by which the tube is produced; hot or cold formed. residual strength of offshore structures after damage - residual strength of offshore structures after damage project description for the 1985-86 annual report of technology assessment and research program for offshore minerals operations by alexis ostapenko joseph a. padula f~itz engineering laboratory library fritz engineering laboratory report no. 508.4 may 1986 . on the structural response of steel telecommunication ... - infrastructure where they usually carry cable guys. steel masts are often flexible and light structures and their common, cost effective practice is using an open lattice, lightweight but adequately stiff system, since a lattice morphology requires only half as much material as a free-standing tubular one with similar stiffness. proceedings blast loading of concrete pipes using c-4 charges - proceedings 2018, 2, 428 2 of 7 describe the load. given the fairly simple numerical model, the results were good qualitatively. for future numerical studies of this problem, a technique for including the confinement of the pressure novel designs of tubular structures for energy absorption - novel designs of tubular structures for energy absorption kai yang a, *, shanqing xu a , a,bshiwei zhou a , yi min xie a centre for innovative structures and materials, school of engineering, rmit ... the new api rp 2a, 22nd edition tubular joint design practice - otc 17236 the new api rp 2a, 22nd edition tubular joint design practice d.i. karsan, paragon engineering services inc., p.w. marshall, mhp systems engineering, d.a ... development of techniques for the joining of composite tubes - thin walled tubular composite structures are becoming more important in many applications. one example is the arm boom for the canadarm. other possible applications in the future can be components for the robot arms, control rods and truss elements for satellite etc. one particular area of concern is the joining of these tubular structures. by using tailor welded blanks - daaamfo - the tubular structures were subsequently obtained by plastic forming rectangular sheet metals as it is shown in formed parts, the tubular structures were fabricated. the specific height of the structures was established to be 200 mm and the width of 100 mm. fig. 4. theoretical profile and the real structures of the homogenous
